EIGHT BALLOTS TAKEN

Charles W. Anderson named Mr. Smith for the honor and the second ballot was held by Mr. Solomon followed by many others. The first ballot showed the vote divided between three candidates: Dr. Edwin Johnson, Rolt, Conklin's candidate, with 275, Mr. F. H. Ansoorge, 234, and Willard H. Smith 115. This was repeated about the way the votes were cast through seven ballots.

COLORED WOMEN STOOD FIRM

It was a noteworthy fact that colored women present for the first time as delegates, stood firmly for the candidacy of the colored man, and they refused to be starbupped even by the representation of the colored men who entered into the agreement which killed the chance for a Negro congressional nominee.
